

TELEHEALTH CONSULTATION GUIDELINES

Telehealth services allow patients to consult healthcare providers remotely using secure video or audio communication systems.

Telehealth consultations are intended for:

- Follow-up visits
- Medication refill requests
- Minor health concerns
- Routine consultations

Patients must provide valid identification before attending a telehealth session.

Medication Refill Policy:

Patients may request medication refills during telehealth visits if:

- The medication was previously prescribed
- No physical examination is required
- The medication is not classified as a controlled substance

Controlled substances and emergency medications may require in-person evaluation.

Telehealth consultations are not suitable for:

- Severe chest pain
- Difficulty breathing
- Major injuries
- Emergency medical conditions

Healthcare providers may recommend in-person visits when necessary.

All telehealth sessions are confidential and protected under healthcare privacy regulations.
